Ready for His Close-Up

Warner Calls Off Execution

Gov. spares convicted killer, citing destroyed evidence

RICHMOND, VA. | Virginia's governor on Tuesday spared the life of a convicted killer who would have been the 1,000th person executed in the United States since the Supreme Court allowed capital punishment to resume in 1976.

Robin Lovitt's death sentence was commuted to life in prison without parole a little more than 24 hours before he was to be executed by lethal injection Wednesday night for stabbing 45-year-old Clayton Dicks to death with a pair of scissors during a 1998 robbery at Champion Billiards Sports Cafe in Arlington, Va.

In granting clemency, Gov. Mark R. Warner noted that evidence from the trial had been improperly destroyed, depriving the defense of the opportunity to subject the material to the latest in DNA testing.

"The commonwealth must ensure that every time this ultimate sanction is carried out, it is done fairly," Warner said in a statement.

Warner, a Democrat, had never before granted clemency to a death row inmate during his four years in office. During that time, 11 men have been executed. Virginia is one of the most active death-penalty states, having executed 94 people since 1976.

The 1,000th execution is now scheduled for Friday in North Carolina, where Kenneth Lee Boyd is slated to die for killing his estranged wife and her father.

VISITORS

The World's Oldest Tourist Trap

A Bahraini man was arrested Saturday on charges of posing as a pimp and conning tourists, resulting in months of harassment for a family, the Gulf Daily News reported. The man took money from potential clients and told them a nearby house was a brothel where they could find prostitutes, police said. But the house was just a normal home for a family, who had to turn away many late-night visitors who thought prostitutes were inside. "Men ... have been ringing the bell as late as 2 a.m.," the homeowner's brother said. The homeowner, who has two children, and his brother caught the suspect after witnessing him pulling the scheme. PARROTS

Squawk! She'll Never Find Out!

A Freiburg, Germany, woman has filed for divorce after her pet parrot clued her in to her husband's affair, the Australian reported. The parrot, Hugo, had mastered her husband's voice, Petra Ficker said, so she became suspicious when it began mimicking her husband saying "Uta." "Hugo always liked to mimic Frank ... and then one day I heard him doing Frank's voice, but saying 'Uta, Uta,'" she said. She then searched through her husband's stuff and found plane tickets for a weekend getaway to Paris, with his name and someone who, surprise, was named Uta. She then began divorce proceedings. (EXPRESS)

MATRIMONY

White Wedding

Brides generally dress in white, but, for one town, that's not quite enough — as shown when Fatme Hatip donned a special headpiece and makeup in her wedding to Mustafa Kioibashi in Ribnovo, Bulgaria, on Sunday. For weddings held during the winter season, the village residents traditionally put on ceremonies that are special or unique in some way. In addition, brides such as Hatip use the traditional, sequined bridal makeup called "ghelina." (EXPRESS)

The Interfaith Story behind Nostra Aetate

Wednesday, December 7 • 3–5 p.m.

This year marks the 40th anniversary of Nostra Aetate, the Vatican document widely viewed as one of the most significant breakthroughs in Jewish-Christian relations in the history of the Catholic Church. By repudiating the centuries-old charge that Jews were responsible for the death of Jesus and in condemning antisemitism and acknowledging the enduring validity of Judaism, Nostra Aetate opened a new interfaith era. A panel of experts will examine the history of Nostra Aetate, as well as its legacy for interfaith relations and the fight against religious prejudice in the aftermath of the Holocaust.

Ohio Executes U.S.'s 999th Inmate

N.C. expected to put 1,000th prisoner to death on Friday

LUCASVILLE, OHIO | Ohio on Tuesday executed the 999th person in the United States since the country resumed the death penalty nearly three decades ago, putting to death a man who was high on cocaine when he strangled his mother-in-law.

John Hicks, who killed his mother-in-law to steal her money, returned the next day and suffocated his 5-year-old stepdaughter with duct tape over her mouth and nose, so she couldn't tell police he had been at the mother-in-law's apartment.

Hicks, 49, died by injection at 10:20 a.m. at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility, setting up the likely 1,000th execution since the United States widely resumed executions in 1977.

Hicks, who turned himself in to police after the 1985 murders, tried to avoid the death penalty by arguing that his cocaine use made him lose control.

Virginia's governor on Tuesday spared the life of a convicted killer who would have been the 1,000th person. Robin Lovitt's death sentence was commuted to life in prison without parole a little more than 24 hours before he was to be executed by injection Wednesday night for stabbing a man to death with a pair of scissors during a 1998 pool-hall robbery.

Death penalty opponents were bracing for worldwide demonstrations, vigils and bell-ringing ceremonies when the VA governor's clemency decision was announced Tuesday. Since the 1976 decision to reinstate the death penalty, the three states with the highest number of executions are Virginia, Texas and Ohio.

Kenneth Lee Boyd, a convicted murder from North Carolina scheduled for execution at 2 a.m. Friday, is likely to become the 1,000th person executed. (AP)

Big Easy Debuts Wifi Network

NEW ORLEANS | To help boost its stalled economy, hurricane-ravaged New Orleans is offering the nation's first free wireless Internet network owned and run by a major city.

Mayor Ray Nagin said Tuesday the system would benefit residents and small businesses who can't get their Internet service over the city's washed out telephone network, while showing the nation "that we are building New Orleans back."

The system started operation Tuesday in the central business district and French Quarter. It's to be available throughout the city in about a year.

The city had been working on a Wi-Fi network before Hurricane Katrina struck Aug. 29, and police already were using the system to monitor street cameras.

Bush: Iraq Pullout Would Be Mistake

WASHINGTON | President Bush said Tuesday a U.S. military pullout from Iraq would be a terrible mistake, beginning a new push defending his embattled war policy. His Pentagon chief said, "Quitting is not an exit strategy."

The administration is under pressure to convince increasingly skeptical Americans that the president's strategy for Iraq is headed in the right direction. The president is to give a speech on the subject Wednesday at the Naval Academy.

The unrelenting violence that continues to claim American lives has contributed to a drop in Bush's popularity, to its lowest level yet, and to growing doubts about the war. (AP)

Bush Campaigns For '06 Hopefuls

Despite low approval ratings, president tries to aid GOP hopefuls

PHOENIX | Despite his low standing in the polls, President Bush is working to help Republican House and Senate candidates build their campaign war chests while he is promoting his own troubled agenda.

The president is expected to assume a campaign role more often as the 2006 congressional election year begins.

"I, fortunately, have had my fill of campaigns, but there's nothing like walking into a room full of enthusiastic supporters to give you that spirit, to kind of put that wind behind your back," the president told about 1,300 people at a fundraiser for GOP Sen. Jon Kyl in Phoenix on Monday.

Coastal Building Continues

Construction booming near the shore despite brutal hurricane season

SANTA ROSA ISLAND, FLA. | Ten years ago, Hurricane Opal wrecked the bottom floor of Gene Hudkins' just-finished retirement house, so he rebuilt.

Hurricane Ivan did the same last year, and he went back to work. When Dennis did likewise in July — even before he finished fixing up from Ivan — Hudkins decided to sell out and move inland.

"I think it's time for me to find someplace ... a retired person can sit and enjoy without fear," he said.

Many Americans feel spooked by hurricanes like never before, but — a bit paradoxically — probably not enough to follow Hudkins. The nation is hardly backing off its coasts.

Even though Americans have just endured back-to-back the two most destructive hurricane seasons in history, with insured losses topping $54 billion this season, according to the Insurance Information Institute, business groups say coastal construction is still booming and buyers are snapping up property at the usual fast-rising premiums.

Though this hurricane season officially ended Nov. 30, many forecasters predict an intensified cycle for years more.

John Maiolo, a sociologist at East Carolina University who has researched the social impact of hurricanes warns that coastal construction invites problems.

"Hurricanes by themselves aren't disasters," he said. "It's what people build in front of them that are disasters." JEFF DONN (AP)

Columbus Mayor Drops Out of Governor's Race

COLUMBUS, OHIO | Democratic Mayor Michael Coleman dropped out of the governor's race Tuesday, saying his family needs him and he mistakenly thought he could manage Ohio's largest city while campaigning.

The decision leaves Rep. Ted Strickland as the lone major Democrat in the campaign to succeed Republican Gov. Bob Taft, who cannot run again next year because of term limits. JOHN MCCARTHY (AP)

Liberal Groups Brace for Alito Fight

Campaigns aim to sway public ahead of confirmation hearings

WASHINGTON | So far this year, the civil rights and women's groups opposed to President Bush's conservative court nominees have been rebuffed, rebuked and rejected.

And that's just by Senate Democrats.

Now, in the early stages of the most momentous Supreme Court nomination struggle in nearly 15 years, these organizations seek Democratic cohesiveness and then hope to enlist enough Republicans to keep Judge Samuel Alito from taking the swing seat held by Sandra Day O'Connor. It won't be easy.

Alito

With two months before an expected vote on Alito, the groups are deploying organizers to key states and raising money for a television campaign. There is no minimizing the magnitude of the task: Republicans hold 55 of the 100 seats in the Senate, and Progress for America, an organization with close ties to the White House, is waging a strong campaign on behalf of Alito.

"We welcome the opportunity to clarify the differences between the right wing ... and the overwhelming majority of the American people," Ralph Neas, president of People For the American Way, said.

New Wave of Kidnappings Hits Iraq

Va. man among peace activists held; German woman also snatched

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Al-Jazeera broadcast video Tuesday of four Western peace activists held hostage by a previously unknown group, part of a new wave of kidnappings police fear is aimed at disrupting next month's elections.

The news station said the four were seized by the Swords of Righteousness Brigade, which claimed they were spies working under the cover of Christian peace activists. The captives — an American, a Briton and two Canadians — were members of the Chicago-based aid group Christian Peacemaker Teams, which confirmed they disappeared Saturday.

The footage showed Norman Kember, a retired British profes-

Chinese actress Zhang Ziyi at the Tokyo premiere of "Memoirs of a Geisha."

'Memoirs' A Tricky Cultural Fit

New film on Japan's geisha tradition raises issues of authenticity

TOKYO | For an American film starring a Chinese actress in a Japanese role, "Memoirs of a Geisha" picked a tough town for its world premiere.

The film version of the best-selling novel of the same title debuted Tuesday in Tokyo to mixed reactions fueled by concerns of cultural authenticity.

The film is rife with international credentials, but that global touch has many questioning: Can Chinese actresses accurately portray the subtleties of Japanese culture? Can an American director — working from an American novel — do justice to a geisha tradition that is largely misunderstood outside of Japan?

Director Rob Marshall, who won a best picture Oscar with "Chicago" in 2002, has tried to dispel some of those concerns, saying he aimed to set the record straight on geisha — who are often seen in the West as glorified prostitutes.

Japanese viewers were curious to see how Hollywood would portray their country, but not all were convinced.

"I felt like I was watching a movie set in China, rather than Japan," said 28-year-old Yumiko Kamiyama. "I am big Zhang Ziyi fan, which is why I wanted to see this. But I will not be recommending it to my friends." CARL FREIRE (AP)

Israel's Peres May Break From Labor Party, Join Sharon

JERUSALEM | Elder statesman Shimon Peres was expected to leave the Labor Party, his home of six decades, and join forces with Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, in a dramatic realignment of Israeli politics following the pullout from Gaza and part of the West Bank.

Peres

Aides and media reports said Peres would make his formal announcement on Wednesday after dropping broad hints during a quick trip to Barcelona.

Peres' defection from Labor and his declaration of support for Sharon would represent an earthquake with the potential to bring down the decades-long political structure that has left Israel stalemated between hawks and doves — led by Labor and Likud, which Sharon abandoned. (AP)

Canada Kicks Off Winter Campaign

Martin's party holds slim lead in polls after no-confidence vote

TORONTO | Prime Minister Paul Martin kicked off Canada's election campaign Tuesday with a slim lead in opinion polls after his minority government was toppled in a no-confidence vote in Parliament.

Scheduling the vote for Jan. 23, Martin used his first campaign speech to tout Canada's strong economy, which has unemployment at a 30-year low and the government running a budget surplus.

Prime Minister Paul Martin officially set the early election for Jan. 23 on Tuesday.

"Canada has gone from pauper to powerhouse. Deficits are history — we've had eight surpluses in a row now, helping to keep our economy strong," he said.

Canada's three opposition parties allied to bring down Martin's government Monday night, arguing his Liberal Party did not have the moral authority to govern because of a scandal implicating some of its senior members in kickbacks and misuse of federal funds.

According to a poll conducted for the Globe and Mail newspaper, the Liberals held a six-point lead over the strongest opposition group, the Conservative Party, but have lost ground in their stronghold of Ontario and face an increased desire for change. ROB GILLIES (AP)

Vatican Defends Policy on Gay Priests

VATICAN CITY | The Vatican defended a policy statement designed to keep men with "deep-seated" homosexual tendencies from becoming priests, but said there would be no crackdown on gays who are already ordained.

The official "Instruction" from the Congregation for Catholic Education, the first major policy statement of Pope Benedict XVI's papacy, was officially released Tuesday, a week after an Italian Catholic news agency posted a leaked copy of the Vatican document on its Web site.

Cardinal Zenon Grocholewski, the head of the education congregation, defended the document as a clear reflection of long-standing church teaching, telling Vatican Radio that "in this field, in today's world, there is some confusion."

He also made clear the Instruction was intended for candidates for the priesthood and not someone who "discovers his homosexuality after having been ordained." (AP)

In India, HIV Travels With Truckers

Spread of disease tied to drivers' contact with sex workers on routes

NEW DELHI, INDIA | Zalisz Ahmed paid $1 and lost his virginity on the side of the road to one of India's countless young truck-stop prostitutes. He's had unprotected sex with many others since and says he's never heard of AIDS.

Ahmed, 20, is one of an estimated 5 million to 8 million truck drivers who supply the country with everything from apples to air conditioners along routes that have become deadly HIV highways.

The roads crisscross the nation of more than 1 billion people and facilitate one of India's high-risk AIDS groups: men far from home who are always on the move.

Just as in Africa two decades ago, truckers and the sex they buy have helped fuel India's spread of a disease that revolves mainly around sex and intravenous drugs. With an estimated 5.1 million people living with AIDS and the virus that causes it, India currently ranks just after South Africa in logging the world's highest number of infections. However, the number of Indian cases per capita remains low, with about 1 in 100 people infected so far.

A volunteer from the AIDS Prevention Society hands out condoms to prostitutes at a coal depot in Gauhati, India.

Local truck stops, called dhabas, litter India's highways. The prostitutes are poor and uneducated—forced to sell themselves for pennies. Negotiating condom use simply isn't an option for most who work alone, instead of in brothels.

Outreach workers have for years visited dhabas. Safe sex messages are plastered across billboards and are handed out in brochures.

"In Africa, it was exactly the same because wherever the roads did not take people, the epidemic did not reach there," said S. Sundararaman, an AIDS consultant. "The epidemic is invading."

France to Tighten Immigration

In wake of civil unrest, government aims to enforce stricter rules

PARIS | French Prime Minister Dominique de Villepin announced tightened controls on immigration Tuesday as part of his government's response to the nation's worst civil unrest in four decades.

Authorities will better enforce requirements that immigrants seeking 10-year residency permits or French citizenship must master the French language and integrate into society, Villepin said.

France also will implement a stricter screening process for foreign students and plans to crack down on fraudulent marriages that some use to gain residency, he said.

Both Villepin and Interior Minister Nicolas Sarkozy, his rival, have announced law-and-order measures since rioting broke out this month in depressed suburbs where many immigrants live.

The two men — members of President Jacques Chirac's conservative party — are expected to vie for the presidency in 2007.

U.S. Troops Help Rescue Abused Cubs

ADDIS ABABA, ETHIOPIA | U.S. troops flew two endangered cheetah cubs to the Ethiopian capital Tuesday after instigating their rescue from a village where a restaurant owner had held them captive and abused them.

The male and female cubs were released on the grounds of the Ethiopian president's official residence after their journey from the hamlet of Gode.

Soldiers named the two rescued cheetah cubs in Ethiopia Scout and Patch.

The saga of the cubs started last month when U.S. troops, carrying out humanitarian work in the Gode region, discovered the animals' owner was keeping them tied up with ropes around their necks at his restaurant and forcing them to fight each other for the amusement of patrons and village children.

The soldiers alerted the Ethiopian government and a U.S.-based cheetah rescue group, drawing wide attention to the cubs' plight. (AP)

Don't Breathe Filth

Are you breathing polluted indoor air?

FACT: Children and the elderly are especially affected by polluted indoor air. (Department of Consumer Affairs)

FACT: The levels of hazardous pollutants in indoor air has been found to be up to 70 times greater than in outdoor air. (EPA)

FACT: 50% of all illnesses are caused by polluted indoor air. (American College of Allergists)

FACT: One out of six people who suffer from allergies do so because of the direct relationship to fungi and bacteria in air duct systems. (Total Health Magazine)

Dust, dirt, pollen, animal dander and other air-borne contaminants are pulled into your duct system every time the furnace or air conditioner runs.

These contaminants build up inside the ductwork over time and can help make your duct system a breeding ground for mold spores, bacteria, fungus, mildew and other microbes.

Each time the furnace or air conditioner is turned on, contaminants are spewed out and circulated throughout your home and affect the health and comfort of your family.

Family members who suffer from allergies, asthma or other respiratory ailments as well as children and the elderly are especially vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollutants.

The removal of contaminants from the entire HVAC system is recognized by industry experts as the most effective way to eliminate air duct pollutants. This is referred to as the "source removal" method of duct cleaning.

In addition to the obvious health benefits, ducts cleaning can help you maintain a cleaner home. It also helps to restore HVAC system capacity and lessen running time, resulting in lower heating and cooling bills.

The HEPA-AIRE method used by our company assures you that your ducts are being cleaned with the most advanced source removal equipment available.

More than 100 reporters and camera crews from around the world got their first look at the fuzzy creature. And the 4 1/2-month-year-old cub did not disappoint, chasing the zoo keeper, trying to nibble at the hems of her jeans. Tai Shan goes on public display on Dec. 8.

Leaders to Target Manure

Regional officials say animal waste must be curbed to save bay

WASHINGTON | Leaders of Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia signed an agreement Tuesday to stop some Chesapeake Bay pollution at its source.

About 20 percent of the nutrient pollution in the bay comes from animal manure. State governors say their states will work together on a regional education plan to encourage farmers to adjust animals' feed so they produce less phosphorous and other pollutants.

"Just by implementing the dairy cow feed management effort, it would eliminate 2 million pounds of nitrogen per year from entering the Bay," said Kelly Shenk with the Environmental Protection Agency's Chesapeake Bay Program Office.

Pennsylvania Gov. Edward Rendell said in the past year, the states worked together to keep human waste out of the bay with improvements to 100 wastewater treatment facilities. He said better water quality standards kept 15 million pounds of sewage from entering the bay.

"For 2006 we're turning our focus to agriculture," Rendell said.

The governors plan to lobby Congress together for changes to the federal farm legislation that would require farmers to adopt feed and waste management practices that will minimize the chances of pollutants ending up in the water.

The executive director of the Chesapeake Bay Commission, Ann Swanson, said the reason they will direct efforts to agriculture this year is that a recent study found five of the six most cost-effective pollution solutions involve agriculture.

Witness: Truck Hauled Secret Materials

GREENBELT, MD. | A former National Security Agency employee admitted to backing his pickup truck up to an unguarded exit and hauling away boxes of classified material, an FBI agent testified Tuesday.

The former NSA employee, Kenneth Ford, made the admission during a raid on his Waldorf, Md., home, FBI agent Michael Thompson testified. Thompson, the first witness called in Ford's trial, said he was "surprised" to find the classified materials in Ford's home.

Prosecutors said they raided the home after receiving a tip from Ford's girlfriend.

Ford told the agents he was using the documents as reference material for a new job.

The former NSA employee is charged with illegally possessing classified materials and making false statements while trying to obtain a security clearance.

Defense attorney Spencer Hecht said in opening statements that the case was not as simple as the prosecutor said. ALEX DOMINGUEZ (AP)

Deeds Files for Recount Of Attorney General Results

A court supervised review of Virginia's closest statewide election began Tuesday when lawyers for Democrat R. Creigh Deeds filed a petition demanding a recount in the razor-thin attorney general's race. The petition was filed one day after elections officials certified Republican Robert F. McDonnell the winner. Virginia law allows for recounts if the results fall within 1 percentage point. The final certified vote totals showed McDonnell with a 323-vote margin. (AP)

Confidence in Economy Soars

Report raises hopes for holiday shopping; new home sales jump

NEW YORK | The outlook for the holiday shopping season brightened Tuesday with news that consumer confidence soared in November in response to a drop in gasoline prices and a pickup in the job market.

The surge in the Conference Board's Consumer Confidence Index raised hopes that Americans will be shopping enthusiastically by the end of the holidays. Separate reports Tuesday of record home sales and a jump in durable goods orders provided more signs of an improving economy that's likely to boost shoppers' spirits.

"It looks like consumers will be in a more giving mood," said Gary Thayer, chief economist at A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis.

The Conference Board said its Consumer Confidence Index rose to 98.9 this month, the highest level since August, when the reading was 105.5. The November figure surpassed analysts' forecasts for a reading of 90, and it was also up from 85.2 in October. The results reversed a two-month decline.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said sales of new single-family homes shot up by 13 percent last month, the biggest one-month gain in more than 12 years.

The '06 Ford Fusion: classy look and soft on the pocketbook

ROAD TEST | Consumers only need to look at Ford's newest mid-size sedan, the Fusion, to see that family cars are looking more upscale these days, even as their price tags remain decidedly affordable.

The nicely styled, five-passenger Fusion comes to market with the fourth-lowest starting retail price of all 2006 mid-size sedans.

The front-wheel-drive Fusion also has attractive styling that seems to be a mix of a European rear end and a formal front with three-bar, chrome-colored grille. The Fusion impresses with its smart packaging.

The interior is cleanly designed, with controls that are understandable and well-arranged. There's nothing odd or awkward here, and there's even a redline on the tachometer — something that had been phased out a couple of years back.

The Fusion SEL includes optional leather-trimmed seats that look almost British, with contrasting-thread stitching. The upscale-styled front bucket seats, in particular, are comfortable, too.

There is a little bit less front- and rear-seat headroom than other sedans, but hiproom and shoulder room, front and rear, are about comparable. So is the rear-seat legroom.

All Fusions come with split 60/40 rear seatbacks that fold down to accommodate long items that need to extend from the trunk.

The name is appropriate: a fusion of European and domestic styling; a fusion of practicality and comfort; and a fusion of fanciness and your being able to pay for it.

You'll also appreciate the rear-seat, fold-down center armrest that sits up from the seat cushion so riders don't have to slouch to rest their arms there.

There are two engines for the Fusion, a four-cylinder and a V6.

With a surprisingly tidy weight, the V6-powered model pulls away from stoplights smoothly and with decent get-up-and-go. There is good passing power, too, and you can merge easily into traffic — all without fuss and without any noisy, muscle-bound engine tones.

Rather, the V6 isn't intrusive or annoying, and competent engine sounds emanated, especially during hard acceleration.

Overall, the interior was quiet, with wind and tire noise kept to a minimum.

The Fusion handles mostly like a car that's smaller than it is, and drivers feel confidently connected to the road. There's also a stability in the ride that feels more like that of a European car than a domestic-branded vehicle. ANN M. JOB (AP) and not repairable. The quoted cost for the replacement included rack, hoses, pump, etc., and was over $1,000. Does this sound right?

You need a second opinion. Doesn't make sense that it would need every last piece of the power steering system.

My husband and I have a 1994 Chevy S-10 with the 4.3 engine with 83,000 miles on it. Lately we've experienced very rough engine idle. We were also frightened recently by an instance of the engine shutting itself off while at highway speeds on the interstate. We've not had a repeat performance, but it's made us wary of taking the truck on long-distance trips. Do you have any advice?

I presume you may have a vortec engine, and, if so, you need to check the fuel injection system as they have been very troublesome. Also check the crank shaft position sensor, the mass air flow sensor, and the ignition module.

Cars Get a Hard Drive

Race shows robotic autos aren't too far away

The predictions of futurists have often fizzled on the subject of robots, which today can vacuum floors and play chess but not drive a car.

But an exciting demonstration last month in the Nevada desert suggests that technologists are getting closer than anybody realized to a robotic car.

Within about two years, the first car able to drive autonomously on freeways will be a reality, predicts Sebastian Thrun, Stanford University's guru of robotic cars and the winner of the Pentagon's Grand Challenge race in October.

The Grand Challenge, sponsored by the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency, pitted teams that had built cars able to autonomously navigate and drive an off-road course.

The Stanford team won a $2 million prize for completing the course in the shortest time among a field of 23 finalists, five of which were able to cross the finish line. In a similar contest last year, not a single entry finished.

Thrun is director of one of a handful of artificial-intelligence labs nationwide that are directing serious attention to developing cars that can drive themselves.

That marks a shift in thinking, coming after decades and billions of dollars in government spending on intelligent highways. The Bush administration has sharply increased such federal outlays, which have reached hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

Cornell University's entry, "Spider" (No. 26), competed in the Grand Challenge, but Stanford walked away with top honors and the $2 million robotic car prize.

The Transportation Department has poured this money into programs to install instruments on roadways and create intelligent networks that could operate fleets of vehicles. The investments have been much like federal research into fusion energy, with breakthroughs predicted as being just around the corner but never quite happening.

The Grand Challenge results this year were a real breakthrough, demonstrating that individual cars can successfully use satellite guidance, artificial vision and complex software to navigate obstacles, such as ruts and tunnels.

"I am a big fan of putting the intelligence in the cars," Thrun said.

No Repo, But the Car Won't Go

A new gizmo is upping the odds that even the most hard-knock customer will come up with the car payment. Hooked into the ignition system, the gadget enforces "No pay, no start."

It's worked wonders at Patriot Auto Sales, in Norfolk, Va., where nearly every car that drives off the lot is outfitted with a PayTeck Smart Box, a system that hands over a five-digit code in exchange for each payment. Come due date, the car won't crank until the customer punches the code into a palm-size keypad wired into the dash.

Since Patriot began using PayTeck three years ago, its repos have dropped from about 45 percent to less than 15 percent. General manager Art Madden said he has close to 500 of the units on the road — which has not only cut repos, but also boosted business.

"Without it, we could never make a lot of the sales we do," Madden said. (AP)

EYES ON THE PRIZE: Peyton Manning and the Indianapolis Colts may feel pressure to finish undefeated, but their real goal is to win the Super Bowl this season.

NATIONALS | BY MATT SWENSON

MLB Deserves D.C. Screwball

GOOD FOR THE D.C. COUNCIL for playing hardball with Major League Baseball over the Nationals stadium.

MLB has proven itself to be a selfish and careless organization in its one-year dealing with Washington, so why should Bud Selig and company get everything they want?

One year ago, everyone knew the deal the District signed with MLB to get the Expos was a bad one. It was passed by the council after a harrowing few days when it looked as if the league would take its ball and go elsewhere.

Now there is no threat of the Nationals leaving town.

It seems about time baseball did something for the city.

Washington proved itself to be a great baseball town, with 2.75 million fans filling RFK Stadium last season. Most important to Selig and his henchmen: After years of losing money on the Expos, they made a profit with the Nats.

No, baseball isn't giving up this gold mine of a market.

So it seems about time baseball did something for the city. The cost of the proposed waterfront ballpark keeps rising at an astronomical rate, and city taxpayers shouldn't foot the bill for the millionaires club.

If baseball has eight groups willing to spend $450 million to buy the Nats, why can't it find a way to protect the city from any cost overruns? If it doesn't like that idea, let the D.C. Council move the stadium site next to RFK, which we all know is a cheaper proposition.

Either way, MLB should step up to the plate for its newest baseball town.

The Search for Perfection

Dominant Colts look unbeatable on march to possible 16-0 record

NFL | Peyton Manning and the Indianapolis Colts would define perfection as winning a Super Bowl title. Anything more would be a bonus.

But with five weeks left in the regular season, the Colts' arduous, three-decade quest to return to the Super Bowl now carries an added burden — trying to join the 1972 Miami Dolphins as the only unbeaten teams in NFL history.

Forget that the Colts are already 11-0, could clinch the AFC South title in the next two weeks and may soon wrap up a first-round bye and home-field advantage throughout the playoffs.

The big question now around Indy — and the NFL — is whether anyone can beat this team.

Coach Tony Dungy wants everyone to keep things in perspective.

"Hopefully we win the next two because that means we will wrap up the division," he said Tuesday. "If we win them, we know there will be a lot of talk about 'Can you go undefeated?' But that's never really been our goal."

Indy hasn't trailed in a game since Oct. 17, the offense has averaged nearly 36 points in the last eight games and the defense has allowed an AFC-low 159 points.

On Monday, former Bears and Saints coach Mike Ditka said on a national radio talk show that this offense was the best he'd ever seen.

Last week, Don Shula, architect of the Dolphins team that went 17-0, said he believed the Colts could continue knocking off challengers.

"As long as they stay healthy, I think they've got a great shot at it," Shula said. MICHAEL MAROT (AP)

Beamer Repeats as ACC's Top Coach

Honor comes ahead of title game vs. Florida St.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Virginia Tech is one victory away from winning the Atlantic Coast Conference title for the second year in a row. Yet coach Frank Beamer already has successfully defended his title.

He was named ACC Coach of the Year on Tuesday for the second-straight season, easily outdistancing Georgia Tech's Chan Gailey in voting by the Atlantic Coast Sports Media Association. The fifth-ranked Hokies play Florida State on Saturday in the first conference championship game.

Virginia Tech won its first eight games to reach No. 3 in The Associated Press poll before Miami came to Blacksburg earlier this month. Dominated almost from the start, the Hokies lost 27-7, and quarterback Marcus Vick finished with six turnovers.

Yet they didn't panic. Virginia Tech pounded in-state rival Virginia 52-14, then watched Georgia Tech beat Miami. That left only the finale against North Carolina between the Hokies and a trip to Jacksonville, Fla., for the ACC championship game, and they handled it with ease, 30-3.

"Overall, I would have to say it has been a very satisfying year, with our biggest obstacle coming up Saturday," Beamer said. (AP)

Martz Eager to Return As Coach of the Rams

Rams coach Mike Martz wants to return to the field after missing the last six games with a heart ailment. Martz said Tuesday he would ask his doctor for permission to return to his job. The Rams are 3-3 under interim coach Joe Vitt since Martz stepped down in October with endocarditis, a bacterial infection of the lining of the heart. "This is the best I've felt," Martz told TV station KMOV. "And when you feel this good, you feel like you should be working." (AP)

Martz has not coached since October.

Adu Candidate for World Cup

U.S. coach Bruce Arena is inviting Freddy Adu to his first camp with the national team and left open the possibility that the 16-year-old could be on his World Cup roster. Arena said Tuesday at a soccer symposium that he plans to observe Adu during the team's first training camp of 2006, which starts Jan. 4 in Carson, Calif. Giving the depth of the U.S. player pool, Adu appears to have only a longshot chance of being on the roster for the World Cup. (AP)

MISTAKES?

NFL Denies Admitting Errors

The NFL denies telling the Seahawks that officials erred when they ruled two New York Giants touchdown receptions complete in Seattle's 24-21 overtime win. Seattle coach Mike Holmgren said Monday that the league took the rare step of admitting officiating mistakes in the game Sunday. The league said in a statement released Tuesday that reports that it told the Seahawks of officiating mistakes on the two touchdowns were inaccurate. (AP)

Antawn Jamison and the Wizards followed up an impressive overtime victory over the Pistons with a disappointing blowout loss to the Bobcats last weekend.

Inconsistent Play Plagues Wizards

Dixon, Blake return to D.C. as members of the Trail Blazers

WIZARDS | Things finally looked like they were back on track for the Wizards after a wild, double-overtime win over the NBA-best Detroit Pistons on Friday.

Things quickly were derailed again with a loss to the struggling Charlotte Bobcats on Saturday.

Which Wizards team will show up against the Trail Blazers tonight is anyone's guess.

Washington matches up well against Portland (5-7), and, with the exception of the Bobcats, it hasn't lost to teams with losing records — a trend they'll need to re-establish for a win tonight.

Wizards coach Eddie Jordan insists that talent isn't the cause of recent inconsistency, but, rather attitude. When the Wizards fall behind early, Jordan said, there is a tendency to "get a bit down, thinking that you're not going to win when you need a win," he said.

But it's hard to keep a cool mindset as players recognize the depth of the team's talent and get anxious about avoiding another slump.

"We just want to win. No matter what," shooting guard Caron Butler said. "We want to win one, and go on to others."

The Wizards will be going against some familiar faces tonight, as Juan Dixon and Steve Blake — both University of Maryland graduates and former Wizards who left in the offseason — will come off the bench for the Blazers. It'll be the first time either player has played away from the D.C. metro area since high school.

"It will be interesting for them," Antawn Jamison said. "It'll be exciting for those guys to come back and be playing in front of this crowd again." CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

SIT OUT: Florida State guard Cornelius Lewis and Florida defensive end Derrick Harvey will miss the first half of their next games after being ejected for fighting in the fourth quarter Saturday. Lewis will sit out the first half of the ACC championship game against No. 5 Va. Tech. Harvey will miss the first two quarters of No. 17 Florida's bowl game. (AP)

GOLF | Fred Funk wore a shade of pink, the color of his eyes stained with tears.

Sitting below the stage at a PGA Tour charity luncheon was Jerry Townsend, a 19-year-old kid who means more than any trophy or cup Funk won this year. J.T. fixed his eyes on the microphone placed in front of his mouth, then slowly moved his head away from the tube that controls his wheelchair.

Tuesday was the first time he spoke publicly since an awkward hit at a high school football game last year nearly took his life and left him paralyzed. Measuring his words, J.T. thanked everyone for support, then returned his gaze to Funk and smiled. "Mr. Fred, you pulled it out," he said. "Pink skirt and all."

other for the 49-year-old Funk. He became the oldest winner of The Players Championship and the oldest player to qualify for the Presidents Cup.

But for all he did, Funk now is best known as the guy who wore a pink skirt in the Skins Game.

That was the price he paid for Annika Sorenstam hitting her tee shot seven yards past him on the third hole Saturday. But with a birdie on the par-5 18th, he wound up with 15 skins worth $925,000 from the $1 million purse to beat Tiger Woods, Fred Couples and Sorenstam.

Players pick a charity of their choice for 20 percent of their prize, and it was a no-brainer for Funk.

His introduction six months ago to the two-sport star at Episcopal High School made such an impression that Funk earmarked $185,000 to Builders Care, which goes toward building a new home for Townsend. The PGA Tour recently gave $100,000 to buy a lot for the house.

"The wins and the achievements are shallow victories compared with what you do, or what you feel, when you can help someone else, and to see the impact," Funk said.

Tennessee Coach Writes to Fans After Losing Year

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Tennessee football coach Phillip Fulmer's acknowledgment that the 2005 season was "unacceptable" has been put in writing to the fans.

Fulmer wrote a 300-word letter that was e-mailed Tuesday to about 38,000 season ticket holders and other fans signed up to receive periodic newsletters from the athletic department through its Web site.

"This year was a disappointing season for everyone in the Tennessee family," wrote Fulmer. "We started this season with great expectations and failed to live up to those expectations. I assure you that no one is happy about our season — especially me, and I know that our fans deserve better than what we produced this year." (AP)

Wagner Joins the Mets

BASEBALL | Billy Wagner and the New York Mets finalized their $43 million, four-year contract Tuesday, and the reliever was introduced at a Shea Stadium news conference.

Wagner saved 38 games for Philadelphia last season and turned down an offer of just more than $30 million over three years to stay with the Phillies.

While the Mets offered a no-trade clause, he said Philadelphia was willing to include it for only the first two years of a contract. "It came down to the no-trade," he said.

The 34-year-old left-hander, whose fastball reaches 100 mph, appeared at Shea one day after the Mets held a news conference for Carlos Delgado, acquired last week from the Florida Marlins.

Terps Ready for Challenge

No. 23 Maryland eyes complete effort when taking on Minnesota

TERPS HOOPS | Weariness won't be an issue. Neither will emotion.

After surviving the frenzied pace of the Maui Invitational and the indignity of playing before a sparse home crowd against unheralded Nicholls State, 23rd-ranked Maryland intends to raise its level of play Wednesday night against Minnesota in the ACC-Big Ten Challenge.

The Terrapins (4-1) played three games over a 48-hour span in Hawaii before returning home to face a Nicholls State team that went 6-21 last year. Maryland led by only nine points at halftime Sunday before pulling away to an 88-56 victory.

The students gone for Thanksgiving break are back, and the Terps' arena should be rocking when Maryland and Minnesota (2-1) meet on the basketball court for the first time.

Winning is a priority of course, but at this juncture the Terrapins are also interested in getting ready for play within the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"It's still early in the season," said guard D.J. Strawberry, who had a career-high 12 assists against Nicholls State, "but it's about time we started putting together a solid

Point guard D.J. Strawberry is ready for the Terrapins to play a "solid 40 minutes."

40 minutes."

In its lone loss, Maryland led Gonzaga at halftime but lost by 12. The Terps trailed Chaminade at the break before regrouping, then rebounded from lackluster first-half performances against Arkansas and Nicholls State.

If the Terrapins are to climb in the national rankings and return to the NCAA tournament after missing out last year, they can't wait much longer to begin stringing two solid halves together. "It definitely has to start now," guard Chris McCray said. "We have to come out with more fire. Hopefully it comes out on Wednesday." DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

TV's Specials Season

The most wonderful time of the year for holiday animation

SMALL SCREEN | Good grief, CBS network executives said when they first saw Charles Schulz's "A Charlie Brown Christmas."

"They thought it was too slow," executive producer Lee Mendelson recalled being told in 1965. But the special was an instant hit with critics and audiences. Forty years later, its ruminations on the spirit of Christmas, backed by a lilting jazz score by Vince Guaraldi, remain fresh and affecting.

"A Charlie Brown Christmas" airs on Dec. 6, on ABC. It's paired with "Charlie Brown Christmas Tales," based on Schulz's work and featuring each of the Peanuts characters. Among the other animated favorites marking the holiday season:

→ THE HAPPY ELF: 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, NBC. Harry Connick lends his voice and original songs to the story of Eubie the elf, who must rescue the unhappy town of Bluesville.

→ SANTA CLAUS IS COMIN' TO TOWN 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 2, ABC. Fred Astaire was the narrator for this 1970 tale about how Kris Kringle (Mickey Rooney) overcomes a ban on toys in Sombertown and ends up becoming Santa Claus, the world's biggest toy distributor.

→ I WANT A DOG FOR CHRISTMAS, CHARLIE BROWN! 8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 9, ABC. Rerun, younger brother of Linus and Lucy, gets more than he bargained for when Snoopy the beagle invites his brother, Spike, for a visit.

→ RUGRATS CHANUKAH SPECIAL 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17, Nickelodeon. Grandpa Boris and his old rival, Shlomo, perform in a play about the holiday's meaning and, with the help of the babies, find a way to reconcile.

→ FROSTY THE SNOWMAN 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17, CBS. Jimmy Durante narrated the tale of the brave snowman pursued by evil Professor Hinkle. Followed at 8:30 p.m. by "Frosty Returns," narrated by Jonathan Winters.

→ A RUGRATS KWANZAA 8:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 26, Nickelodeon. When Aunt T. arrives to celebrate the Kwanzaa holiday with the Carmichaels, little Susie learns what it means to honor "the legacy of our great people." LYNN ELBER (AP)

A Fantastic Freshman

Chris Brown comes out of nowhere with an impressive debut

MUSIC | In the current flood of teenage R&B singers striving to be the next Usher, Chris Brown looks like the best bet to ride out the wave on top. The 16-year-old from Virginia has a lot more going for him on his debut, "Chris Brown" (Jive), than just the irresistible No. 1 single "Run It!" — as many of his boastful lyrics will attest.

Jive Records knows a star-in-the-making when it finds one and it surrounds Brown with an all-star team of producers, including Scott Storch (who gives "Run It!" that Ushery glow), Andre and Vidal, Cool and Dre, and Jazze Pha.

More noticeable, though, is how the arrangements of many of the songs — from the laid-back "Yo (Excuse Me Miss)," the album's next single, to the sweet-and-simple "Just Fine" — could be tracks from the heydays of boy bands 'N Sync and Backstreet Boys. Instead of trading off the various parts, Brown sings them all in an attractive croon.

"Chris Brown" is packed with one potential single after another, with R&B ballads such as "Is This Love?" and dance grooves such as "What's My Name." For now, Brown and his handlers are doing everything right.

WORKING FATHER: Gallagher is committing his musical taste and talent to CD.

To Memphis Via the O.C.

Peter Gallagher, TV's cool dad, raises his voice in soulful song

TRANSITIONS | Peter Gallagher looks excited, nervous and expectant. And he should. The "O.C." dad is putting out his first record ... at age 50.

"I knew I was going to have to put together an evening of music before I hang it up, because if I didn't do it, it would be a real terrible thing for me," says the actor on the set of his hit show.

Gallagher's album, "7 Days in Memphis," was released in early November by Epic Records. Bluesy and heartfelt, the collection of mostly Memphis soul covers is a great opportunity — albeit a daunting one — for the longtime actor and Broadway singer to showcase his singing chops.

"What's scary about doing a solo record like this is admitting your own taste," he said. "I don't have a character to hide behind."

Not that fans of "The O.C." haven't already heard Gallagher belt out the blues.

Last season, Gallagher's TV alter-ego — jolly attorney and hip father Sandy Cohen — jumped up on a stage and brought down the house with Solomon Burke's passionate "Don't Give Up on Me."

Fans and critics praised Gallagher for his warm, thunderous voice, and record executives came calling. Epic executives urged Gallagher to record a slew of '60s and '70s songs from Memphis' Stax/Volt label in the vein of "Don't Give Up on Me." They gave him a multi-disc set of Memphis music to study.

It was a perfect match.

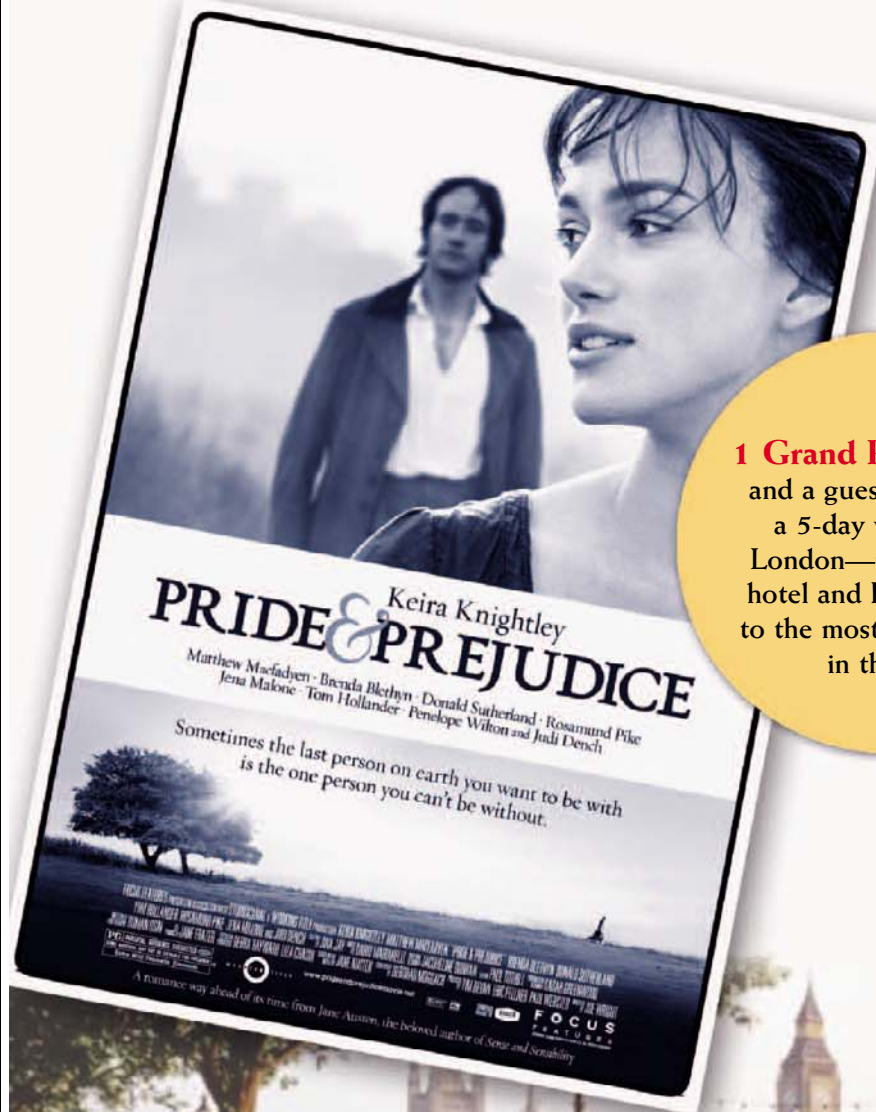

"But no one needs to do 'Dock of the Bay' again," he said. "I just don't think you can mess with perfection. Maybe not no one, but not me."

Instead, he chose lesser known songs by the likes of Carla and Rufus and Sam and Dave, and tunes such as the horn-infused "I've Got to Love Somebody's Baby" and the emotive soul ballad "Then You Can Tell Me Goodbye." He hopes the selection will attract older baby boomers and curious younger fans akin to his twentysomething castmates on "The O.C."

As for touring, Gallagher said, "I'm definitely going to perform live, even if it's at a Ramada Inn near you, and I'll be selling records in the back." SOLVEJ SCHOU (AP)

Kittens With a Hit

Purring pop stars the Pussycat Dolls put the sex in sextet

NOVELTY ACTS | It's hard to know what to make of the Pussycat Dolls. How do you categorize a sextet that preaches self-empowerment while dressing like they just stepped out of a bordello? What do you call a pop group apparently formed largely on the basis of how hot each member is?

The answer: Just chill out and enjoy the show.

"We don't take ourselves too seriously," said Nicole Scherzinger, the Dolls' lead vocalist. "We're not, like, trying to reinvent the wheel or anything."

The Dolls, who trace their heritage to a naughty revue on the Sunset Strip, are currently riding high with the ballad "Stickwitu," the second single from their debut CD "PCD."

The disc has already produced the late-summer smash single "Don't Cha," which not-so-coyly asks, "Don't cha wish your girlfriend was hot like me? Don't cha wish your girlfriend was a freak like me?"

That song's infectious mix of pure pop and rap — courtesy of Busta Rhymes — is only enhanced by the video, which features the six members vamping in buttock-grazing miniskirts and bare midriffs.

"We always say we're sassy but classy," said member Kimberly Wyatt.

It's easy to be catty about the Dolls' musical chops. But music is only part of the Dolls merchandising juggernaut: There are plans for a perfume, a line of clothing and lingerie, a make-up line and even a reality-style TV project.

"We like to say that there's a Pussycat Doll inside every girl," said group member Ashley Roberts. "I think we're just out there inspiring all these young girls, older girls, grandmas, to find that confidence and that Pussycat Doll within them."

Television

THAT WAS DREADFUL: Resident "American Idol" meanie Simon Cowell has signed up to sneer at singing hopefuls for "at least" five more seasons, according to Fox Television. The brusque Brit had been vaguely threatening not to return to the show.

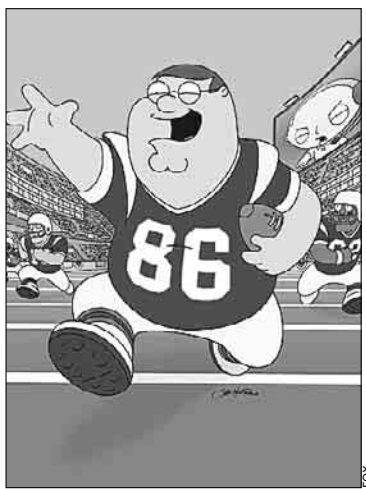

Repeat Viewings

Fans can catch up or watch again thanks to a trio of new DVDs

NEW RELEASES | This week's releases of TV on DVD include:

CSI: CRIME SCENE INVESTIGATION
— THE COMPLETE FIFTH SEASON

Year five of the show that launched the forensics franchise arrives in a seven-disc set with 25 episodes, including a season-ending two-parter directed by Quentin Tarantino. DVD extras include an engaging featurette on motormouth Tarantino, who talks at length about his participation.

"The Family Guy" knows: When you're canceled, you've got nothing to lose.

FAMILY GUY: VOLUME THREE

Canceled after three seasons, the animated series about Quahog, Rhode Island's most outrageous family returned to the air by popular demand of devoted fans. A three-disc set packs the first 13 episodes of the show's return engagement, with commentary on 10 and a featurette about the fan sensation that revived the series.

AEON FLUX: THE COMPLETE ANIMATED COLLECTION

As Charlize Theron heads into theaters in a live-action version, a three-disc set offers the full 10 episodes of the animated series about the anti-hero in a post-apocalyptic future, along with the original "Aeon Flux" cartoon shorts. Series creator Peter Chung provides commentary. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

ON TV TONIGHT

GEEZ, NBC, WE'RE STILL
DIGESTING THE TURKEY

The folks at the Peacock Network don't go far to ring in the holiday season. CHRISTMAS IN ROCKEFELLER CENTER (8 p.m., NBC) takes place just outside corporate headquarters.

HERMEY'S CLEARER THAN EVER
RUDOLPH THE RED NOSED REINDEER

(8 p.m., CBS) This 1964 animated tale was digitally remastered in 1998. Several songs that had been cut or truncated over the years were also restored.

HYDE'S ... HUH?

THAT '70S SHOW (8 p.m., Fox) Hyde's wife shakes things up.

FUNERAL FOR A SPOILED BRAT

LOST (9 p.m., ABC) Kate's past resurfaces as one of the stranded is laid

Authorities worry about unpasteurized milk threat to public

Kelsey Kozack's kitchen is a dairy wonderland. Fresh cheese, yogurt and milk abound, all compliments of Iris, a gentle tan cow who grazes the family's seven-acre property.

Although only 16, Kelsey runs the tiny Fort Bantam Creamery from her family's home just west of Seattle, offering culinary creations from Iris' unpasteurized milk — also known as raw milk.

"After you've been drinking raw milk for a while, you can't drink store-bought again," Kelsey said.

But the U.S. Food and Drug Administration disagrees, saying raw milk is dangerous and can sometimes carry deadly pathogens, such as campylobacter, salmonella and E. coli.

Now, the state has taken notice of raw microdairies, saying they

D.C. Five states allow raw milk for animal consumption, a loophole that raw milk fans exploit. In some remaining states, including Colorado, Virginia and Wisconsin, raw milk is available through cow-share programs.

In Washington state, raw milk sales are legal if the farm is licensed through the state, which requires monthly testing of the milk and inspection of the farm and milk bottling room.

Also, each bottle must contain a warning label saying it may contain harmful bacteria.

Janet Anderberg, public health adviser with the state Department of Health, said there was an E. coli outbreak last year involving three need to be licensed with the state Department of Agriculture. The order has some operators wondering whether the state has a right to regulate what many consider a private operation.

The Kozacks say they don't consider themselves in the retail business. They sell "shares" of Iris, their one dairy cow, to raw milk aficionados, and Kelsey handles the care, feeding and milking.

Chuck Kozack, Kelsey's father, said the family will stop operating the creamery if the state sends a cease-and-desist letter.

Interest in raw, unpasteurized milk has been on the rise nationwide, part of a growing natural foods movement. Proponents say pasteurization's scalding heat destroys milk's taste and nutrients.

Selling raw milk for human consumption is legal in 28 states, according to the Weston A. Price Foundation, a raw milk advocacy group based in Washington, people in Whatcom County tied to illegal raw milk. In 2003, three people in the city of Yakima and eight in Skagit County became ill from tainted milk.

"No one has died as a result of a raw milk outbreak, but we've had some really sick people," Anderberg said. RACHEL LA CORTE (AP)

A Holiday Hangover

'Tis the Season

Retailers wonder if shoppers will return after Thanksgiving

Now that the Thanksgiving weekend is over, how much will shoppers see in the way of markdowns — and how soon?

This week started the quiet time for the holiday season at the nation's traditional retailers, and it was also the official start to the holiday period for online merchants. With fewer shoppers in the stores, many nervous merchants will be tempted to start extreme discounts early, beyond the markdowns already planned for the season.

"My sense is that stores will take stock of how the weekend went and see how the first week progresses," said Ken Perkins, president of Retail Metrics LLC, a research firm in Swampscott, Mass. "If the traffic drops off a cliff, then stores will have to be more proactive. ... If you have bargains, then shoppers will flock to your store."

This sign on Chicago's State Street urges pedestrians to go shop, but will they listen in the weeks before Christmas?

Amid an improving but still challenging economy, many retailers offered discounts over the weekend that were even more aggressive than at the start of last year's holiday season.

But overall, the weekend's results were sluggish, according to ShopperTrak RCT Corp., which monitors sales at more than 45,000 retail outlets. It reported that sales for Friday and Saturday combined fell 0.5 percent to $13.41 billion, from $13.48 billion from the same period a year-ago period.

The big winners were discounters including Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and electronics chains, which attracted shoppers in the early morning hours Friday with discounted digital cameras and TVs. Mid-price stores like J.C. Penney Co. Inc., and Kohl's Corp., which also plied shoppers with early openings and big discounts on sweaters, pulled in the crowds as well. But plenty of other apparel stores were left behind, except for teen stores such as Abercrombie & Fitch Co., which has attracted loyalty without resorting to such measures.

Meanwhile, in cyberspace, free shipping and heavier price cutting that started early in November has helped lure shoppers, said Heather Dougherty, an analyst at Nielsen/NetRatings. According to com-Score Networks Inc., consumers spent $305 million online last Friday, up 22 percent from $250 million a year earlier.

But Monday was seen as the real beginning of the online shopping season, and so retailers were offering even better deals. For example, Ebates.com, which allows users to earn cash back on purchases at more than 800 online stores, is offering double rebates on purchases at select sites.

The come-ons appeared to be working; according to early reports, online sales were robust Monday. Amazon.com Inc. reported 1 million items ordered from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m., compared with 660,000 items during the same time Sunday.

By Jon Robertson with Robin Robertson

Dining on Disaster

When the real apocalypse comes, we hope you're not planning to make lasagna out of white beans and dehydrated onion. But when a thunderstorm knocks out the power for two days, instant vichyssoise sounds perfectly practical. "APOCALYPSE CHOW" (by Jon Robertson, $13) starts with a shopping list of canned food, then explains how to feed on it in style for five power-free days. There's plenty of handholding for survival novices, like where to buy the best cookware for camp stoves. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Polishing Your Sister Act

My sister and father have had problems getting along all my life. My sister has a rebellious streak and always enjoys going against what people think she should do. My father is very traditional and conservative and gets baited by her behavior very easily. This has been going on for years, and my sister is now in her mid-20s and has announced that she is bisexual and is living with a woman. My father is extremely upset, and once again the lines of communication have been broken. My mother tends to stand by, helpless, and is not good at being a go-between, so she just gives up and lets her relationship with my sister suffer as well. I feel like the responsibility is on me to fix things, and sometimes I've been able to, but now I'm finding myself getting more and more angry at my sister because of her stunts. At what point do I just give up and hope my sister grows up and my father loosens up? — ANONYMOUS, MD.

Wow, I'd hate to be the girlfriend of someone whose family believes I'm just a "stunt." Granted, your sister has a track record of trying to shock, but we're talking about her having a relationship, not joining the mud-wrestling circuit. Plus, she's in her mid-20s and her life is hers to live, Jerry Springer moments and all. My hunch is that you want so much to reduce your family's stress that you're stressing yourself out — not a healthy tradeoff, since you ultimately can't control their actions. The best thing you can do for your sister is to give her relationship a chance and not judge all her decisions by how they affect your father, and the best thing you can do for your parents is to keep up your relationship with them but not condone their breaking ties with your sister. At the end of the day, you might not be able to play arbitrator, but you can set a good example by being loving, open-minded and forgiving — a great quality in a sister and a daughter.

I'm wondering what the best course of action is for someone who's been having panic attacks. I talked to my doctor about it and he's willing to prescribe anti-anxiety medication, but I didn't feel that he gave me a good answer about how long I would have to be on it. I'm nervous about going on medication but am wondering what my options are. I've read that panic attacks are very biological and physiological and therefore the treatment needs to be as well. — ANXIOUS, D.C.

It's true that panic attacks manifest themselves physiologically and that medication can many times help alleviate these symptoms. But therein lies the problem: Treating symptoms is one thing, eradicating their cause is another — and something that pills by themselves can't do. That's why medication alone is generally not the best course of treatment for panic disorder, as the vicious cycle of anxious thoughts, sensations and actions needs to be understood and broken in order to be free of panic attacks for good. Cognitive-behavioral therapy is a great way to do this; medication can be a supplement, but not a substitute.

Send your mental health and emotional wellness questions to Andrea Bonior, Ph.D. at baggage@readexpress.com. This column is not a substitute for one-on-one care.

HOW TO USE

Apartments.com Directory

A. Location

You'll see that the directory listings in this issue are geographically arranged by state, county and city to make your apartment search easy. There are also an abundance of apartment communities on our display pages that increase your choices in the areas that you are considering.

B. Price

Each listing contains the most up-to-date information about the apartment's starting rental rates, its phone number and apartments.com Web #

C. Web ID

Log onto www.washingtonpost.com/apartments, select search by Web # and enter the community Web # number into the search box. There you will find photos, maps, directions, school information, pet policies, features, amenities and much more. There's no better source of the detailed information you need to find the perfect new home than apartments.com
